

Year of the Frog Calendars

Get yours now!

Posted: January 17, 2008, 6 p.m. EST

Professionals representing the Wildlife Conservation Society, Conservation International, Disney, Smithsonian, and Audubon are trying to raise awareness about the fact that 2008 is the "Year of the Frog," and also for the Amphibian Ark project. Amphibian Ark is a global response to our planet's amphibian crisis. As many of you are aware, 30 percent of the species of frogs worldwide are predicted to go extinct within the immediate future in the worst extinction event since that of the dinosaurs, unless something is done to protect them. This is the consensus wildlife conservation issue for the year 2008. In a historical conservation effort, hundreds of zoos, conservation organizations and other institutions from around the world will be working together in this cause.

Year of the Frog calendars feature incredible photos donated by leading wildlife photographers and information about the frogs featured, the Year of the Frog, the amphibian crisis, and the Amphibian Ark project. This is not for profit; all proceeds go to helping frogs.

Get your calendar now!